We Present the 1935 Kaleidoscope

In an attempt to picture the history of the school year in a new and interesting manner your editors have chosen to arrange the material herein in a chronological order. We have endeavored to bring to you the school year in a true kaleidoscopic manner. We trust that this departure from books of the past will justify itself by a favorable reception on the part of the student body.

In Two

FIRST SEMESTER

We make new friendships and renew old ones . . .
Football is in the air . . . We try to make good impressions in classes . . . We rush and are rushed We greet the alumni at home comings . . . We go home for the holidays . . . After Christmas
. . . Exams.

SECOND SEMESTER

S e m e s t e r s .

We miss a few faces . . . Reports have gone home
. . . Snow covers the Hill . . . Back to classes . . .
Spring gets in our bones . . . Baseball, track and tennis . . . More study and final exams . . .
Commencement and finals.

In the first semester we are mostly concerned with freshmen, and consequently, in keeping with our chronological order we present them in the first semester along with the sophomores and football.

CLASS HISTORY

A FRESHMAN of not so many years ago once wrote: "We came, we saw, the Sophomores conquered." Perhaps just such a thought ran through the minds of a number of bright-faced youngsters in the Fall of '33. Arriving on the hallowed grounds of old Hampden-Sydney—happy, innocent, trusting all those around them, they were suddenly and mercilessly plunged into the fate of the uninitiated, and the once cheerful smiles changed to frowns of deepest woe. But soon realizing that Fate dealt equally with all Freshmen, we—the Class of '37—soon accustomed ourselves, and that admirably well, to new environments, new associations, and new habits. Working hard at that which was set before us, and calmly pursuing our humble ways, we were basely accused of having no enthusiasm, no pep. It seems that there is an old quotation that has something to say about "lulls before storms"—Calmly, nobly, we twice stood the ignominy of being campused for our (?) emblazoning the campus with the crest of our class—'37. But at the third accusation we cast off the chains of inferiority and rose up in righteous indignation. No simple complaint—no whining for us! No secret meetings—no signing of worthless "declarations of independence." The Class of '37 not only rebelled—but also revolted—and that completely. Each individual showing the utmost cooperation, we threw away Rat Caps and withdrew ourselves completely from under the rule of the Sophomores, who were now frightened in their astonishment and knew not where to turn. For a week the hitherto Freshmen became First Year Men. Unable to cow us into submission by their own resources, the Sophs must call in the upperclassmen, who threatened the Class of '37 with withdrawal of future Sophomoric privileges, and to preserve tradition, the First Year Men once more became Freshmen for a few days. There are those who will contend that we were conquered, defeated—but there is such a thing as a moral victory!

To go back a little earlier. Entering this College as the largest Freshman Class on its records, the neophytes of '37 were found to be, after a series of test, normal in every respect—mentally, in personality, and in physical requirements. Immediately, the class began to make use of the opportunities set before it. On athletic field and in gymnasium, it began to make a name for itself. Letters were won in Basketball by Bernier and Ebel, by Spencer in Baseball, and Montgomery in Track. In the academic field the Class of '37 made its presence felt, shown by the list of names on the Dean's Honor Rolls. In all the phases of life on the campus—social, spiritual, journalistic, athletic, intellectual, fraternal, literary—the Class of '37 has taken a hand.

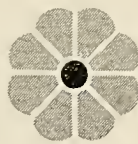

THE KALEIDOSCOPE

It is quite useless to proclaim vain glorious prophecies; to brand ourselves with the inability to weigh values—the Class of '37 will most probably never be the greatest class to graduate from Hampden-Sydney—she may never give her Alma Mater a single outstanding alumnus. It is a normal class, and a normal group of personalities it will remain. But this one thing is true—no matter what the Class as a whole will do, no matter what any individual will do—the Class will be marked by a determination—a determination to do one's best—in the results of which there will be a note of satisfaction, not only from the world, but from ourselves also, which is, after all, the only pleasing reward for an endeavor well accomplished.

FRATERNITIES AT HAMPDEN-SYDNEY

EIGHT and one-half decades ago, in the year 1850, was the first social fraternity chartered and established in the state of Virginia. It was the Zeta Chapter of Beta Theta Pi, and the college was Hampden-Sydney. For ten years, this was the single social brotherhood on the hill, but in 1860, Sigma Alpha Epsilon granted a charter to a group here, and the local chapter was named the Virginia Upsilon. However, it lasted but a single year, and in 1861 its charter was revoked.

Six years later, in 1867, Epsilon Chapter of Chi Phi was chartered, and was closely followed by Sigma Sigma Chapter of Sigma Chi in 1872; Upsilon Chapter of Kappa Sigma in 1883; Iota Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha in 1885, and Alpha Tau Chapter of Kappa Alpha in 1899.

In 1902, the Hampden-Sydney chapter of Sigma Chi lost its charter. In 1926, a group of students, led by Alexander Hudgins, who is now State Editor for the Richmond News Leader and Executive Secretary of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association, founded a local fraternity, which they called Phi Sigma Epsilon. In 1931, Sigma Sigma of Sigma Chi was revived through the medium of this local.

In 1912, Zeta Chapter of Beta Theta Pi had its charter revoked, leaving Chi Phi the distinction of being the oldest existing social fraternity at Hampden-Sydney. This left the total number of brotherhoods at four. In 1914, Nu Chapter of Theta Chi was chartered. In 1925, a local was organized, and named Delta. In 1926, Virginia Beta Chapter of Theta Kappa Nu was established. This, together with the establishment of Phi Sigma Epsilon, brought the total to eight. In the fall of 1932, Delta disbanded, and since that time, the seven fraternal groups have remained unchanged.

During the World War, when practically the entire student body had to leave college to follow their flag, the fraternities were kept alive by receiving into their number, certain ladies whom the chapters chose. One of these ladies, whom we all know, is Miss Emma Venable, Pi Kappa Alpha.

For 57 years, the various fraternities held their meetings in various rooms in the dormitories, but in 1907, Chi Phi, seeing the need, took the initiative and built a chapter house. The land was leased to them, free of charge, by the college during their good behavior. One by one, the other groups followed their example and took advantage of the offer of the college to erect their own buildings on Hampden-Sydney property.

A c t i v i t i e s

THE first Student Council of Hampden-Sydney College was organized in the fall of 1906. Prior to that date the functions of a students' council were performed by the senior class. The senior class of those days before 1906 seldom numbered more than eight or ten; the judiciary body of the past century, therefore, was approximately the size of the present Student Council. So far as can be learned, the jurisdiction of the senior class in this extraordinary function extended only to cases of cheating, stealing, or breaking a pledge.

Soon after the opening of school in 1906, the student body established a separate and distinct judicial organization known then and ever since as the Student Council. Twelve men then constituted the original body, three representatives being elected from each of the classes. A few years later, however, the number was reduced to nine and the freshmen representatives dropped.

The functions of the newly created Council were no wider in scope than those performed by the senior class. There is no record of when the numerous other duties now performed by the Council were added to its jurisdiction, but when the constitution of the Council was formulated more than a decade ago, it included practically all the present functions. And for a number of years prior to 1931 the Council also exercised jurisdiction over cases of drinking among students though no definite provision was made in the constitution for this authority. In the fall of 1931, after several stormy sessions of the student body, provisions for punishment for drinking were definitely incorporated in the Council constitution, only to be voted out again in 1933 by the student body upon recommendation of Lambda Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa. Student respect for the council had decreased steadily because of this function of the Council, and it was hoped that by removing it the Council could be restored to its proper place in campus opinion. That hope has been fulfilled to a large extent already.

When the general constitution of the student body was formulated last Spring, the Constitution of the Student Council, previously an independent document, was revised and incorporated in the larger constitution.

THE present Student's Christian Association was preceded by the Y. M. C. A. of Hampden-Sydney. The first mention of this earlier organization is given in the catalogue of 1886, and is to the effect that the Y. M. C. A. led some of the chapel services. No fuller account is recorded until the first KALEIDOSCOPE now in the College Library lists the officers for 1892. Each KALEIDOSCOPE since has contained this same limited amount of information.

The minute book now in use by the Student's Christian Association was opened November 22, 1922, and gives in detail the more immediate history of the "Y" and later the S. C. A. At this time, the "Y" took to itself various duties which have since been filled by other organizations.

On April 20, 1927, by a vote of the combined cabinets of 1926-27 and 1927-28, the local Y. M. C. A. became the Students Christian Association of Hampden-Sydney. In the "Resolution of Withdrawal" passed on April 27, the reasons given for the change were that this local organization stood for the fundamental truths of evangelical Christianity and that their beliefs conflicted with those of the national Y. M. C. A., and also that they had received no appreciable direct and useful benefits from the dues given to the national group.

The S. C. A. till emphasizes that part of the work which the men of 1927 believed should be stressed, and at all times has tried to make it possible to say about it in truth what the KALEIDOSCOPE of 1928 stated concerning the newly formed organization: "Thus far, this infant organization has been most successful in carrying out its religious program on 'The Hill' supplementing this with activities of a social and recreative nature that are useful in the four-fold growth of men."

The cabinet of 1934-35 now leading this work at Hampden-Sydney consists of F. A. Schaeffer, President; T. C. Roberts, Vice-President; R. L. Chambliss, Secretary; and G. M. McGuire, Treasurer. The Committee Chairmen are J. R. Woody, Devotional; Day Carper, Sunday School; C. K. Ale, Social; G. R. Nichols, Reading Rooms; W. F. Junkin, World Education; and R. S. Gardner, Publicity.

THE STUDENT'S CHRISTIAN
ASSOCIATION

WHEN the Union Theological Seminary was removed from Hampden-Sydney in 1898, it took with it those seminary students who successively for many years had served in mission work in the neighboring country. Students of Hampden-Sydney College, chiefly those who were candidates for the ministry, jumped in to fill this vacancy. It was from this group of active Christians that there spontaneously emerged the organization of students who were then called the Ministerial Band, joined together to facilitate their greater usefulness. The group continued its service through the years under the above appellation until the year 1923, when its members voted to be known as the Ministerial Association of Hampden-Sydney College.

During this same year there originated from a suggestion of a member a campaign for a sum of money to finance a building in which the Association meetings might be held, all such gatherings having previously been held in the private rooms of the students. With the administration of the college behind them, the campaign was pushed with energy, and the first meeting in the new three-room log cabin was held at the opening of the term of 1926-27.

Of events of historical interest during the next decade there were few, but the score or more members extended their field of missionary endeavor, laying up history where "neither moth nor rust doth corrupt."

However, inspite of the fact that most of its work was being done off campus, an investigation of secretarial records show that this group of college students held nearest to their hearts the welfare of their fellow students. Therefore, when the work of the League of Evangelical Students, with its purpose of presenting to college students a well-rounded witness, spiritual and intellectual, to the truths of evangelical Christianity, it was only a matter of time till the group became affiliated with the League, being formally received in February, 1935. The Association has long realized the lack of campus activity and believes that this affiliation will balance its witness and enable it to better practice on the campus what it has preached off the campus.

THE MINISTERIAL
ASSOCIATION

ON a September day, one hundred and forty-six years ago, a group of students at a small Southern school organized themselves in the interest of literary and forensic excellence into what turned out to be the second oldest collegiate literary society in the United States. They called it the Union Society of Hampden-Sydney, expressing, as a writer of 1893 puts it, "the feelings of the members toward the controversy and danger of downfall of the Constitution and Union of the States." Since that time, save for a four-year period during the War between the States, the society or its direct descendant, has met without a break. Seventeen or eighteen years later, Dr. John Peter Mettauer led a group in forming the Philanthropic Society, the other party to the merger which created the present Union-Philanthropic Society.

By 1800, Union was firmly established, and had laid the basis for the splendid library of later years, but the younger Philanthropic had hard sledding until, in 1819, a complete reorganization was effected by the three members then in the College. From that time on, the two became rivals, and before long the Philanthropic had become so strong that the conditions of keenest rivalry which are always remembered in connection with the two societies were in full force. Virtually every student in the College was a member of one or the other, Philanthropic boasting to exceed Union with seventy members in 1824. Both societies spent a great deal of time on their respective libraries, sending to Europe for the "best editions of the classical works." The vitally important place occupied by the societies in the life of the College during these prosperous years is shown by such incidents as the following. The historian of Philanthropic casually notes that a large sum was turned over to the College faculty for "the improvement of Hampden-Sydney College" in 1840. One of the plays, an original and somewhat pointed farce, presented by the societies at commencement almost drove President Cushing away from the College.

The greatest setback in the history of the societies came in the war years, '60-65, during which neither group met. After the College re-opened, one society had two members and the other one, but using these as a nucleus, the students soon had two flourishing organizations, rivals, as ever, once more.

Magnificently prosperous at times, deep in depression at others, the two old rivals passed through the rest of the century and the first quarter of the present one. But the field of activity and interest began, about this time, to be very considerably lessened by the multiplication of organizations and activities in the College, and it was decided that, in order that neither of the ancient and honorable groups die completely, a merger of the two should be effected, the new group to be called Union-Philanthropic. Since that day, interest and activity in the Society seems to have been on the upward trend, and the outlook becomes steadily more cheerful.

UNION- PHILANTHROPIC LITERARY SOCIETY

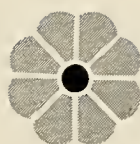

"V. C.," or more properly "The Vigilance Committee," under the guidance of "Dopey" Dodson, and aided by the stalwarts of '36 and '37, has recently experienced a most successful year. This committee has as its purpose the discipline of the new gentlemen better known as freshmen. It was installed a decade or so ago to replace the old form of hazing with its promiscuous paddling and other evils. All of which accomplished little in the discipline of the freshmen and was enducive only to personal animosity and a spirit of revenge which was in the natural course of events visited upon the innocent members of the up-coming freshman class.

Then it was suggested that a formal court be organized with representatives from the upper three classes to which the complaints concerning a freshman might be sent, and where the freshman in turn might have a fair chance to defend his actions.

This for the most part has eliminated any unjust humiliation, but its success naturally depends upon the calibre of its members, who this year should be highly commended for their work. This year's court, presided over by "Dopey" Dodson, its senior representative, and consisting of Bill Thomas, "Limpy" White, Junior members; Fred Williams, "Keno" Harshbarger, and John Frank Chambers, Sophomore members, has so successfully and justly handed down its decisions that there is no room for complaint. And any one visiting the top floor of McIlwaine some Wednesday night was certain to have been impressed by the seriousness and dignity with which their judgments were pronounced.

The 1935 KALEIDOSCOPE presents this volume to you. To its composition we have given many careful hours of preparation. There was a certain similarity to college annuals, which we have endeavored to leave behind, in keeping with the spirit of progress.

We sincerely hope that the 1935 volume fulfills the aim of the staff and your expectations.

The magazine staff of the 1935 KALEIDOSCOPE has overcome many difficulties in securing the advertisements which have made this book possible. Due to national code regulations, many advertisers are not permitted to advertise in College Annual publications and the staff found it unusually difficult to obtain sufficient advertisements. We appreciated the cooperation of those firms advertising in our book, and we commend the staff for its successful efforts in bringing this book to you.

The Tiger began its fifteenth year with an enlarged and improved paper. The size was increased to seven columns as compared to six last year and a great increase in the number of six-page issues was effected. Type and make-up styles remained practically the same but the technique of make-up and head writing was perfected.

Several serial features were introduced to brighten up the paper and a vigorous constructive editorial policy was carried through. In addition, the paper sponsored a number of lectures in the fall which were well received by the student body.

Working under probably the largest budget since its establishment, has this year continued its growth in a manner of which the students may be proud. Its circulation has increased by 200 subscriptions, among which may be found copies going to twenty states, District of Columbia, and the three foreign countries of Morocco, China, and France. In addition, it has an exchange list with many leading colleges in nine of these states. Its value as a medium of advertising, both nationally and locally, has increased proportionally to the rest of the paper.

The 1934-35 Magazine will be remembered as the most essentially literary magazine published in several years. The staff was the smallest in years, but the contributions were so varied as to be of interest to the readers.

A new cover designed by the editor, new type, a new style paper, went to make the Magazine, the New Magazine.

Realizing that our readers are our best critics, we quote what one has said: "The Magazine this year is excellent, the select group of articles and management are very good. A true lover of Hampden-Sydney can pass the Magazine to a friend with pride rather than chucking it into the first waste basket.

We are proud of our Magazine.

The business staffs of college publications are legion when the country's colleges are considered, but of the three staffs at Hampden-Sydney, the staff of the Magazine is perhaps the least known. Few men, if you asked at random, could answer correctly a query as to the personnel of the business staff of the Magazine.

Nevertheless, "Buck" Ale and his assistants have capably taken care of this most essential phase of the publication. This job has called for much work without the much-sought canity-balm-publicity. They may well be proud of their achievements in helping to present the four issues of the Magazine.

THE HAMPDEN-SYDNEY HANDBOOK

In recognition of a definite need for a handy compendium of the numerous facts relating to the operation of the College, which facts must be at various times known, the Student's Christian Association took over the job of meeting the need and set aside the necessary funds.

The Handbook might appropriately be called a miniature annual, but the primary purpose of the two books is not quite the same. The one provides happy memories of bygone experiences—the other offers an introduction to those very experiences and acquaintances. Obviously it is especially designed for freshmen and seeks to help them in their abrupt and bewildering transition to a new educational system and a new environment. The usefulness of the Handbook is not limited to freshmen, however. The old men constantly refer to it for various facts, and others connected with the College keep their copy of the Handbook accessible. A number of copies are annually distributed among prospective students and others who are interested in becoming acquainted with the College.

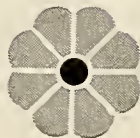

The 1934-1935 Handbook contains 96 pages and is divided into eight classified sections for simplicity of reference. There are pictures of important personages of the administration and student body. The school colors are impressively combined in the cover design.

Entered in competition with similar publications for general excellence at the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Convention, the 1934-1935 Hampden-Sydney Handbook was declared best and awarded First Place.

JOHN FERRY
Captain

When the initial call for football practice was sent out the first week of September, there were both hopes and fears expressed. Reporting for duty were Ferry, Young, Harshbarger, F. Williams, Price, Chambers, Formwalt, Rucker and the Ogden twins, all of whom showed good offensive and defensive skill. Hodgson, Dotson, Harris, Campbell, Thomas and Bernier were out in full prime for the backfield berths. Later in the season, several changes in positions gave Coach Bernier more opportunities to get the best possible combinations from both backs and line.

As the opening game with Langley Field drew near, the prospects brightened very much. Not only the varsity, but also the freshman squad showed marked improvement. As all opening games, the one with the Soldiers had both advantages and disadvantages. On a hot but muddy field, neither team was able to work successfully. The lone score of the day was made by the Tigers on a blocked kick. The score at the end of the game was Hampden-Sydney, 2; Langley Field, 0.

Toward Virginia the Tiger eleven now turned its hopes and energies. Outweighed and outclassed in material and experience, the Tiger men were defeated by the University. However, the Cavaliers were able to score only one touchdown to which they added a safety on a blocked punt from the end zone. The final score of the game was Hampden-Sydney, 0; University of Virginia, 8.

After playing a rather dull, scoreless first half at American University, the Death Valley Tigers came back and ran up a score of thirty-three points. The parade to the opponents' goal was led by Dotson and Harris with Formwalt and Bernier adding their part of the score to the original nucleus. With this margin, the game ended Hampden-Sydney, 33; American University, 0.

It may have been that the boys were too anxious, or that the trip wore them down, or perhaps fate was against them when they met King College at Bristol. The team missed greatly the fight and spirit of Captain John Ferry, out of the game because of injuries. Thus it was that the only night game played by the Tigers ended, Hampden-Sydney, 0; King College, 14.

On the second trip northward, the Tigers were surprised to find so worthy an opponent in Delaware University. Outplayed from the statistical reports, the invading Tigers were satisfied with the score being as it was, Hampden-Sydney, 0; Delaware University, 0.

When one has the season's results before him, it is hard to say much except good for our team when they played against the University of Richmond. On a warm, wind-swept Stadium field, the Tigers bowed in defeat before Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite's men. Ward Harshbarger, Hampden-Sydney guard, was injured seriously enough to put him out of the sport for the rest of the season. The defeat cannot seem so bitter since we were among other better teams losing to the Spiders. Therefore it does not hurt too greatly to write the final score, Hampden-Sydney, 0; University of Richmond, 20.

Playing on a neutral field, Hampden-Sydney met St. Johns of Annapolis at Lynchburg. Both teams played well during the first three quarters, but St. Johns made a fourth-period attack on the Tigers which resulted in victory for the Johnnies. Captain Ferry and Hyde, a freshman, scored for our men, while good punting by Thomas saved several bad situations. The result was Hampden-Sydney, 12; St. Johns, 25.

Bridgewater proved that she has a better ball team this year than in former seasons by stopping the running attack of the Tigers in the first home game of the season. However, when the home boys took to the air, it was easy to see that ours was the better team of the two. Harris and McCallion shared honors in running the ball, while the entire line showed good support. The game ended, Hampden-Sydney, 27; Bridgewater, 7.

The last Northern invasion was late in November when the Tigers went to Philadelphia to meet Swarthmore College. The Yankees scored early in the second quarter, but the Tigers followed quickly with a score on a pass from Dotson to Fermwalt, and Dotson converted the point after the score to get the winning margin. Five threats by our boys were futile later in the game. The final score was Hampden-Sydney, 7; Swarthmore, 6.

Before a fine home-coming crowd on Death Valley, the Tiger men played Randolph-Macon for the Chesapeake Conference title. The two teams were practically equally matched, too evenly for a score by either side. Consequently, the result was Hampden-Sydney, 0; Randolph-Macon, 0.

To the following men we bid adieu: Captain John Ferry, Bernard Dotson, Berry Hodgson, Thomas Young, Benjamin Rucker, George McGuire, Clarence Campbell, William Jeffries and Theodoric Roberts. None of them have been acclaimed as all-time Hampden-Sydney football men, but all are men. With due respect to the Hampden-Sydney Hymn, we say,

*"They have spread with deeds of fair play,
The fame of H. S. C."*

BASKETBALL

The Tiger basketeers ended the 1934-'35 season with a total of ten victories and seven defeats. This does not include the post-season game with Lynchburg College to settle the Chesapeake Conference Title tie between the two teams, which the Tigers lost by the marginal score of 30-29.

The Tiger quint made its debut December 14, with a 30-28 victory over American University in Washington. The Tiger victory came in the last few minutes of play, and was made possible by a trio of shots by "Bill" Thomas, flashy forward.

The second game was taken by St. John's to the tune of 37-32. The first half left the visitors from Hampden-Sydney thirteen points behind, and although the Tiger quint came back in the second period with a rapidly piling score, the timer ran out of minutes before they could overcome the Johnnies' early lead. The third game of the first Northern trip was taken by Delaware, 47-24.

Coming back from the holidays, the Tiger five scored comparatively easy wins over Richmond Business College, and the Medical College of Virginia. The first of these was a rather listless affair, and resulted in a 41-24 win. The second was a bit harder. For a time the Medicos took the lead, but once the Tigers got going, nothing could stop them, and the game ended with the Medicos on the small end of a 40-32 score.

The next game, however, was with the invincible Richmond College quint, and resulted in an overwhelming defeat at their hands, 52-28. Formwalt was the one bright spot on the Tiger quint. He hit the basket with consistent regularity, and managed to tally 13 points against the Spiders.

Another heavy defeat was delivered by the University of Virginia five. Then the Tigers came into their own, and gained an easy victory over the Charlottesville All-Stars, 20-15.

Then the championship team from Richmond took the second game of the season with the Tigers by a 47-30 score. The game was perhaps the best the Tigers played the entire season, but the opposition was just too keen. Formwalt managed to continue his string of high scores, making 15 points to take first place.

Then the Tigers seemed to come to life, and defeated Bridgewater, Randolph-Macon, American University, and the Medical College of Virginia in four straight games. The first was a Tiger victory throughout. The score was 29-24. The second was rather easily taken, 31-18. Formwalt still maintained his high scoring. American University was swamped, and their 51-20 defeat conclusively proved the Tiger superiority. The last of the four was the closest of the series, and at first things looked bad for the Tigers, who missed the services of Rive and Owen, injured. Bernier went out on fouls, but led by Formwalt, Thomas, and Ebel, the Bengals finally managed to eke out a 35-34 victory.

Then the Lynchburg Hornets took a fast one from the Tigers by a 32-28 score, to stop their winning streak, and threaten their Chesapeake Conference chances. The second game of the same week was lost to the Randolph-Macon Jackets, 34-28.

The second game with the Hornets from Lynchburg was a real thriller, and netted a 35-33 win for the Tigers, to tie them for the conference championship. But the tie was played off in Lynchburg, and the determined Hornets took the game and the title in the last 30 seconds by a goal by the invincible Trunkey, which made the final score 30-29.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Intramural athletics at Hampden-Sydney College are organized as one of the functions of the Department of Physical Education. The primary purpose of the intramural games is to provide a means of good exercise and recreation for those who have neither the time nor the ability for the regular athletic program. This program is in its infancy at Hampden-Sydney, having only started in the fall of 1934. Much spirit and interest is shown and a more thorough program is being worked out for the future.

There were nine teams competing this year: Chi Phi, Sigma Chi, Kappa Sigma, Pi Kappa Alpha, Kappa Alpha, Theta Chi, Theta Kappa Nu, Independents, and the Centipedes.

The "Kappa Sigs" maintained a clean slate in touch-football, winning every game with comparative ease, and never allowing their goal line to be crossed by an opponent. There were a number of good games played by each team and quite a few minor casualties were suffered in the form of skinned arms and knees.

The volley ball teams were much more evenly matched and the championship was in doubt until the very last. The Independents and the "Kappa Sigs" fought it out, with the "Kappies" coming out on top.

Basketball was also a hotly contested race, but the Independents showed their superiority by going through the season undefeated. Quite often large crowds turned out for these events and occasionally there was organized cheering.

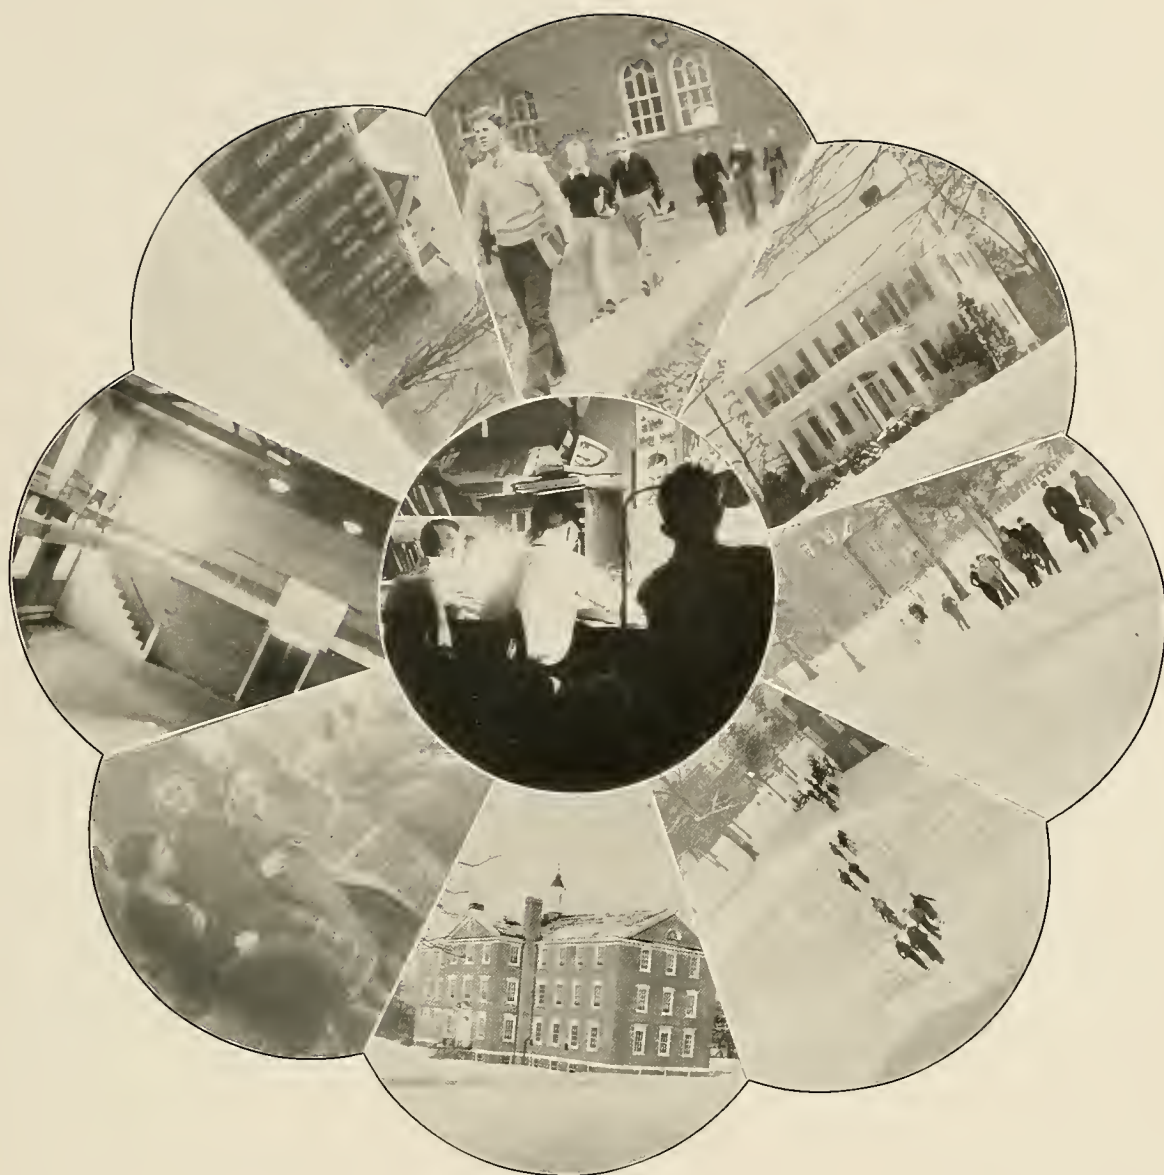

An unusual interest was shown in the wrestling tournament which was worked out under the supervision of Arlie Hayman. In spite of the fact that this was a new experience for several of the contestants, a number of the matches were interesting. Again the "Kappa Sigs" took first place, but were pushed hard by the "Pikas."

As we go to press, a track meet is in the offing and shows every promise of being a fast-moving affair. A baseball schedule is also being made out and a great deal of interest is being shown in the old "national game."

Much credit is due Coach Smith for his untiring efforts and unflagging interest in the intramural program. It was largely through his efforts that there is any organized program. The sports department of the Tiger should also come in for its share of the praise as it also was instrumental in getting the program under way.

It is the wish of the Administrative Board to get a chapter of Sigma Delta Psi at Hampden-Sydney. This is a national honorary athletic fraternity. Chapters of the organization are maintained at 54 colleges and universities over the country. In order to become a member, a number of severe athletic feats must be done. The tryouts for this organization are to be held in the spring.

In the second semester we follow our chronological order and present the junior and senior classes together with spring sports and other activities typical of the season.

SECOND SEMESTER

The second semester is perhaps the better of the two divisions. After the long cold winter the sun seems to arouse us to a greater determination, both in sports and classes. For some reason the baseball and track teams are more successful than either the football or basketball teams.

The social side of college life picks up and the various fraternities plan their spring dances. The lawn is full both in the afternoon and night, and "Cousin Tommy" is kept busy seeking the would-be "Don Juans."

Time flies and soon commencement is upon us. Never will we forget the wonderful and delightful springs which we have spent at the college.

A c t i v i t i e s

In the month of January of the year 1931, a group of students headed by Fleet Dillard, Russell McAllister, Horace Goodman and James Sydnor, banded together and organized the first Hampden-Sydney glee club. Prior to that time, the only groups to sing the praises of the college were quartettes, which were newly formed each session. Mr. Alfred Strick, director of music for Farmville State Teachers College was secured to direct the club's work. Although the instigators had intended to limit the membership the first year to a double quartette, enlarging upon this as the organization became more firmly established, so many students manifested interest in the work that twenty of the best voices were selected as charter members.

The activities that first year included a joint program with the S. T. C. choral club, first in Farmville, and then over Station W.R.V.A. in Richmond. An entertainment was then featured with the dramatic club at the college, and a second broadcast over the radio, this time without any outside voices.

The following year the club sang itself to the state championship, in a contest sponsored by the State Federation of Music Clubs. The contest was staged in the ball room of the Hotel John Marshall in Richmond, and was attended by more than six hundred music lovers from all over Virginia. The last club to be eliminated was that of Washington and Lee.

The Glee Club began the 1933-'34 session with a resident director for the first time. The man secured was Mr. Hugh W. White, who received his Bachelor of Music degree from the Philadelphia Conservatory, with a teacher's diploma from the same institution. The same year, the club began the practice of incorporating its tours with recently organized college orchestras and Ben Franklin, student magician. The tours were ever successful, and the present trips embrace the same three groups with excellent results.

GLEE CLUB

Although dramatics have always been a part of the student life at Hampden-Sydney, first as commencement presentations, and later as the work of different clubs, no records have been kept and much valuable lore has been lost.

The present club, The Jongleurs, dates from nineteen hundred and twenty-three. At that time what is now the Students Club was used for an auditorium, and oil lamps served adequately as footlights.

A few years later, the club first collaborated with the Farmville State Teachers College in its fall play. This custom has prevailed since. Aside from this play, it is the custom to present annual spring plays in May, and again at Commencement.

This year, the successful English comedy, "Bird in Hand," by John Drinkwater, was given in connection with the S. T. C. Club.

To Coach Charles A. Bernier, Hampden-Sydney's success in the world of sport is due. He has succeeded in overcoming the greatest obstacle in his effort to give her success in this as well as other lines of endeavor. Starting from almost nothing in the way of material, a promising group of candidates for the various sports have been gathered together. During the past year, the football team was characterized by a spirit that is hard to beat, the quint and nine also being dominated by it. Hampden-Sydney has always been known for its fighting spirit and as long as "Yank" guides the teams, we feel sure that the teams will continue to maintain that spirit.

Tiger baseball practice started for the 1934 season with the loss of an appalling number of players from the championship team of 1933. Berryman, Hardaway, Mann, Lewis, and McGinnis were absent through the various means that must always rob the perfected college team. But able training by the hands of Coach "Yank" Bernier put the squad in formidable shape for the first game of the season, on April 5, with the university club of Princeton. The result was a 4-3 win for the Tiger nine. The next game was with the Medical College of Virginia, and netted a 10-1 victory for the Tigers. Douglass and Campbell on the mound allowed but four hits, and kept these well separated.

The next two games were with Bridgewater College, and resulted in a tie. The Tigers easily took the first game, 10-1, but due to an injury sustained by Doval Ogden in this game, the team was handicapped to such an extent that the Eagles took the second game, 5-4.

Randolph-Macon took the next series with a 5-5 tie in the first game, and an 8-4 victory in the second. The tie was played through the eleventh inning, where fast approaching darkness ended the contest. The second game was copped by the Jackets in the first half of the ninth when they pushed over five runs to break the 3-3 tie.

The Tigers conclusively proved their superiority over the Bridgewater nine, by defeating them in both games of the second series of the season. The first was a 6-0 shut-out, with Birch Douglass striking out ten men, and only allowing two hits. The second was a 14-4 walk-away. Touring south, the Tigers were thrice defeated. Twice by Elon, the scores being 3-2 and 11-6. Wake Forest won from the Tigers, 4-1, in spite of beautiful pitching by Birch Douglass.

The second duet of games with Randolph-Macon was a little better than the first. The Tigers took a 5-3 victory behind the stellar pitching of Douglass, southpaw, in the first. The second was a 3-3 tie until the Tigers broke it by pushing two runs across in the first half of the tenth, and took the field confident that the victory was theirs. However, the undaunted Jackets pushed in a jinx in their half, and tallied three runs to win the game.

Heading north, the Tigers easily took Washington College on their own field, 18-8. The Bengals scored six runs in the fourth frame and climaxed it with a home run from White. On the same trip, Delaware succumbed for the second straight, and Haverford followed suit, giving the Tigers three victories since defeat.

Returning home, the Tiger nine lost the last Death Valley tilt of the season, to our old and traditional rivals, Richmond College. The 7-3 defeat was largely due to eight errors totaled by the Hampden-Sydney nine, which proved to be costly indeed.

RESUME OF TRACK

When Coach Smith issued the call for material for track practice last spring, the turnout was more than gratifying. Twenty three men, including six letter men, reported. While the losses through graduation and ineligibility must be sustained, they were reasonably few in number, and the prospects in the new material looked excellent. Chances were unusually bright for a successful season.

The first meet was with the Norfolk Division of William and Mary, and due at least in part to the absence of Sid Kellam, crack dash man for the Tigers, the Norfolk men took the match by the close score of 62-55. Owen Formwalt and Ruffe led the scoring for the Hampden-Sydney tracksters.

Mac Owen shone especially, taking firsts in both the 110 yard hurdles and the broad jump, with a close second in the 220-yard hurdles. This last was perhaps the most exciting of the day. A sudden burst of speed by Bell of William and Mary, in the last twenty yards, took him past Owen, who had been leading, and gave him a bare first.

The second meet was with Guilford, and resulted in an easy Tiger victory. The meet was on the Tiger track. Hampden-Sydney took twelve of the fourteen first places. Sid Kellam broke the tape in both his first races of the season—the 100-yard dash, and the 220-yard dash. The first was run in ten and three-fifths seconds, for his fastest sprint of the season. Sam McLaughlin led the scoring with two firsts and one second, the former made in the 440-yard run and the discus throw, and the latter in the 880. Mac Owen lost the broad jump by one-half of an inch.

CARTER, BOWMAN, HENYARD, WILLIAMS

RUCKER, WHITEHOUSE, MCGUIRE, HARRIS, JENKINS, BOOKER, MONTGOMERY

The Tigers copped the second home meet, which was with the Randolph-Macon Yellow Jackets, with $74\frac{1}{2}$ points to the visitors' $51\frac{1}{2}$. Mac Owen and Sam McLaughlin kept up their good work by taking two firsts and one second each. Sid Kellam won the 220-yard dash, but lost the 100-yard dash. The time was ten and four-tenths seconds, one second slower than he had previously run. Most of the Jackets and Bruce of the Tigers tied for first in the high jump. Tate Bowen and Wiggy Showalter, both of Hampden-Sydney, broke the tape at the same instant in the mile run.

In the fourth and final home meet, the Lynchburg Hornets showed their stingers by proving themselves a bit too strong for the Tiger cindermen, taking ten of the fourteen first places and the meet, 83-43. In this meet, three of the old school records were shattered. One was by Mac Owen, who leaped twenty-two feet and one inch, to add two and a half inches to the old broad jump record. Another by Charles Ruff, who clipped eight seconds from his own two mile record, reducing it from ten minutes and forty-two seconds, to ten and thirty-four. The third was made by Ben Rucker in the shot put. He tossed it, as it were, thirty-nine feet five and one-half inches, one and one-fourth further than the previous record.

FERRY

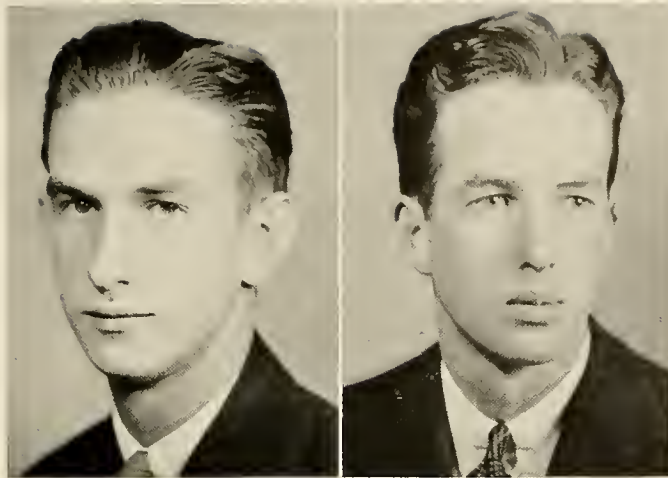

Ferry takes the pole vault in the Lynchburg meet. Bowen runs a good race in the mile. Owen takes the high hurdles and Kellam the hundred.

CLASS HISTORY OF '36

JUNIOR CLASS

ALMOST three years have passed since the campus put on a particularly brilliant coat of green-green then, 'tis true, but as the years have proven this class was particularly brilliant in both curricular and extra-curricular activities as well as in greenness.

Soon after their arrival, the members of this class began to branch out into all college fields—athletics, publications, and social life while at the same time they did not neglect the class room. This branching out brought a steadying influence to certain obstreperous members of the class and helped them to find a place in the diversities of college life. However, as members of this class soon found, there was another portion of the college which also tended to bring quiet to the more unruly freshmen—namely the Vigilance Committee. Many the night that some poor "rat" climbed the winding stairs of Mellwaine to answer "Guilty" to some forbidden sin and a few minutes later homeward wend his painful way—a much subdued young man.

Shannons and S. T. C. were soon discovered and the rat caps of this class became familiar sights in these general meeting places. With the coming of Easter holidays rat caps were discarded, joyfully at that time but in later years many are the men who have looked back at that most blissful period of college life with a longing desire for the rat caps of yore and the care-free life of a freshman.

With the completion of final exams, "au revoirs" were exchanged, for were not all returning in September? The members of this class were now true sophomores, and as true sophs they adored their "alma mater."

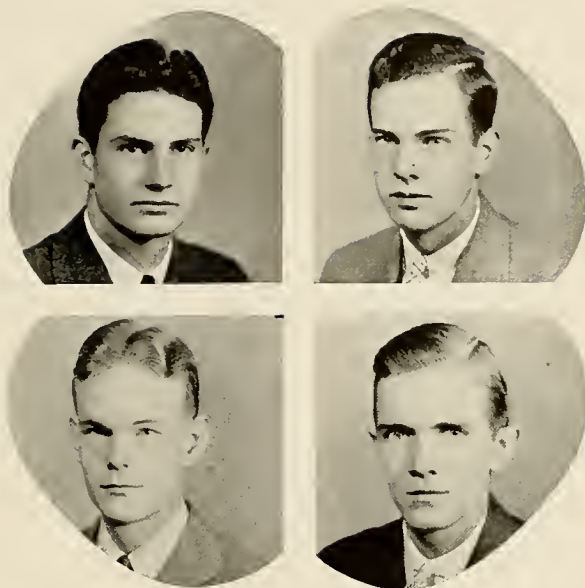

When September rolled around, a remarkably large percentage of the Class of '35 returned. After greetings were exchanged the business of disciplining a new freshman class descended upon their backs. Only once during the entire year did the younger class get out of hand and that was during the spring of '34. There was a hot and fiery joint meeting of the freshman and sophomore classes which ended in a free for all fight. With the aid of Boss Dunkum and some of the cooler heads, the clash was soon ended and the differences settled diplomatically.

However, the disciplining of the freshmen was not the only phase of college life that occupied the lives of this class's members. All phases of athletics, publications, and social life found valuable assets in the class of '36 which would be hard to replace. Thus ended the sophomore year. Many new acquaintances had been made, many new phases of life had been touched, and the sophomore class passed into its junior year a much wiser and more level-headed group of young men.

The depression years have made it difficult for all college students to obtain a college education, but where there is a will there is a way, and consequently a large number of the men of this class returned in the fall of '34. To make ends meet, many had to work while keeping up with their classes, but the desire for a college education had instilled into them a desire which no hardship could down. And so these men set to work with a will which in later years will make a name in the world for many of its members. The will to succeed in life has been a burning fire in the lives of this group and many have risen high in college life and will rise high in life, as time will tell. Success is something which is attained after traveling a rocky road, but this class has the determination.

The Class of 1936 has come to college with a purpose. A few of its members have fallen by the wayside, but for those who have the indomitable will success will come at last. There have been adversities but they have only helped to shape and harden the wills of these men. They have been tried by fire and have received tempering in the college life of Hampden-Sydney which will remain by them throughout life. And now as the third year is drawing to a close and the fourth and last year is looming ahead, these men have their faces set with success in different fields in view, but no matter where success may lie for those who remain faithful there awaits them at the end of the road the crown of life.

SENIOR CLASS

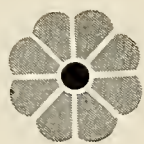

AS we review at a glance the four short years spent here at Hampden-Sydney, it seems incredible that we are so near to the goal of our graduation. The time has passed rapidly, pleasantly and we hope future accounts will show that it has passed profitably both for the college and ourselves. These four years have made us realize that Hampden-Sydney has as its objective, not to instill so many cold facts into its students, but rather to train them to think and conduct themselves along the principles which are her foundation stones. How this training has been executed will of course vary with the individual, but since we, the Class of '35, have had this training it is our history.

Certain memories of our contacts together will always stand out in our memories. Among these incidents, I venture to say, the raid on Venable Hall our freshman year, the trips to Richmond for the football games, and the fiery student body meetings with their important decisions will possibly be remembered above all others.

Perhaps from a spectacular standpoint the history of '35 is not outstanding. For this we are glad. We have effected no revolutionary changes, but have chosen to progress and change cautiously and slowly toward that which we believed was best for us and for the college. We have maintained our high scholastic record, while at the same time losing but few of our group. When we entered we were the largest class to ever attend Hampden-Sydney and now as we reach our senior year we have kept this record each succeeding year. It is a remarkable fact that during the four years we have lost but very little more than half our original group. In a recent survey conducted by the Tiger the majority of the Class of '35 planned to take graduate work after leaving Hampden-Sydney.

Then may I not say, without false pride, that our history shows that we have had imbued within us something of the spirit that makes Hampden-Sydney great. We hope our future history will show that we have held to that which has been bestowed upon us here, and in the years to come, may we give credit to whom credit is due.

H. S. MOSBY, Historian.

HAMPDEN-SYDNEY COLLEGE

This institution opened its doors on January 1, 1776, and is the only college in America from which the students entered the Revolutionary War in a body.

Among its charter trustees were James Madison, afterwards President of the United States, and Patrick Henry.

It stands high among the list of "small colleges" which have sent from their halls a remarkable number of leaders and successful men in every profession, in every walk of life. It has always adhered to the standards of high scholarship and gentlemanly conduct. It is definitely Christian in its beliefs and outlook. In its courses of study it meets modern requirements.

The Degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science are Given

WILL PIPE SMOKING
help you get A JOB?

MANY outstanding employers we have met look upon pipe smokers as the men most likely to be thinking men, men who make decisions calmly, men who can concentrate. Men of this calibre, they say, prefer a good pipe and tobacco . . . Perhaps it is true, then, that pipe smoking sometimes helps in getting a job.

And for pipe smokers, there's one tobacco which, above all others, is "just right" for pipes. That is Edgeworth—the tobacco that combines slow-burning mildness and coolness with a rich tobacco flavor. Larus & Bro. Co., Richmond, Va.
